Judge Etiquette

Recently we asked seasoned AKC judge, Stephanie Seabrook Hedgepath if she would be interviewed for Show Ring – Judge Etiquette. We hope this article will be useful to all in your future as show exhibitors. Bio information included with this article.

1. What is the best way to interact with a judge when coming in the ring?

When the judge approaches your dog, a polite "Good Morning" or "Good Afternoon" or some such banality is sufficient.

2. Is chatting with a judge during the exam OK?

Only if the judges chats to you. See above!

3. What would be things that should not be discussed in the ring?

Nothing other than pleasantries or basic greetings should be discussed in the ring. Never tell the judge what your dog just won or how many points he needs to finish. There should really be very little talking in the ring, especially by the exhibitor. Some judges, myself included, often say something to the dog, to put both dog and handler at ease, but that is about all the talking other than the judge giving instructions to the exhibitor. I talk more than most judges, especially if I think the quality of dog being shown in a class is of above average quality. If you do not understand what the judge's instructions, it is OK to ask them to clarify or repeat them. Your best bet is to come early to ringside and watch how the judge runs their ring - do they do a triangle? Do they move the dog around the ring when it first enters, even if it is a singleton class? Sometimes a judge has to change their normal pattern, usually due to weather conditions such as the constant movement of shade in the ring on a hot, sunny day, so come prepared and don't get upset if the judge changes the pattern. Sometimes, our directions are a bit unclear (even to us!) and we don't mind being asked for clarification.

4. Is it appropriate to talk to a judge after judging before the next breed comes into the ring?

Only if there is a hard break in time for the start of the next group of dogs and the judge has some extra time before that next set of dogs comes into the ring. When one breed is finished for the day, the next breed immediately comes into the ring. The judge has a time limit for each breed and MUST keep on time.

5. Should you ask a judge after judging, to examine your dog so that judge can see what your breed should look/feel like?

No, not if the purpose is to educate the judge on your breed. Even in such a new breed as the Coton, the judge should have educated themselves on the breed prior to judging it. If the judge would like to talk with the exhibitors after judging, then they will request it of the exhibitors before they leave the ring. Often, if there are a number of dogs entered in the Miscellaneous class and the judge knows the breed will soon compete for points, the judge will ask questions of the exhibitors after judging their breed while they are still in the ring. Any discussion should be initiated by the judge.

6. Can you ask a judge to evaluate your dog? If so when would be a good time?

Certainly, you can always request that a judge go over your dog and let you know what they think about its faults and virtues. Some judges will refuse, but some will be more than happy to do so IF they have some open time during the day. If the judge has a full slate (150 dogs or more) there really won't be any time for such a discussion.

7. What should you not say to a judge during judging or at a show they are judging?

Anything having to do with a specific dog, whether yours or anyone else's dog! Again, if the judge wants to know anything about your breed (or even what breed with which you are involved) they will ask.

8. Is it proper to invite a judge to dinner?

That depends upon the situation. Judges will usually not accept an invitation to dine with anyone who is exhibiting at a show at which they are judging - or they will judge in the near future. Even if you are good friends, you should not invite a judge to dinner over a weekend at which the judge is officiating at a show in which you are exhibiting. Please remember that as far as AKC is concerned you have broken the 'rules' even if you are doing nothing 'wrong' if there is just an APPEARANCE of impropriety, no matter what your intentions are!

9. As a judge, how is the best way for an exhibitor, be it novice or seasoned, to interact with judges at a show?

Politely and with respect. Judges are humans, too, and if we are approached in anger, it is natural for the majority of them to get defensive. If you want to know why you placed where you did in the class (in other words, why you didn't win) most judges will not remember your dog specifically, unless it was in the last class they judged. I always tell exhibitors who approach me for my reasons for placing dogs in a class, that if they will get their dog and bring it back to me I will be more than happy to go over the dog and tell them virtues and faults. I may remember why I liked another dog better, but I may not. I tend to judge a class and forget it!

10. Do you have any other thoughts on this subject that I have not thought of?

- a) There is a wealth of information for anyone interested in the purebred dog and the American Kennel Club on the AKC website. A serious exhibitor should read the AKC Rules Applying to Dog Shows at LEAST once a year:
<http://images.akc.org/pdf/rulebooks/REJ999.pdf>
- b) They should also be conversant with the Regulations for Record Keeping on their own dogs: http://www.akc.org/rules/record\_keeping.cfm

USACTC, Inc., Newsletter

- c) Plus, they should also know the "Rules Applying to Registration and Discipline"
<http://images.akc.org/pdf/rulebooks/RREGS4.pdf>
- d) To keep up to date with any changes and what is going on with the inner workings of AKC, one should get in the habit of reading the monthly AKC Gazette, which is now online and at no cost to the reader. In the Gazette, the first pages to which you should turn should be the "Secretary's Page" which will let you know everything going on at AKC! http://www.akc.org/pubs/gazette/digital\_edition.cfm
- e) For more insight in to what AKC expects from their judges, there is nothing stopping an exhibitor from reading the "Rules, Policies and Guidelines for Conformation Dog Show Judges" which far better explains what is and is not expected from a judge:

I am always open to conversation about anything 'dog' and welcome correspondence and queries via email at jimanie@welshcorgi.com.

How to Eliminate Fleas from Your Home for Free

1. After having your pet treated for fleas, you can eliminate fleas from your home easily, cheaply and safely.
2. Take regular dishes and set them on the floor approximately in the center of each affected room throughout the house. Usually one dish per room.

3. Fill each plate almost to the brim with water and then add a good squirt of dish washing liquid. Stir it up.

4. Next take one little tea candle and place it in the center of the plates. You should now have several plates filled almost to the brim with water and dish washing liquid sitting on the floor of each affected room with a small tea candle in each.

5. Now light the candles and find something to do while the light attracts the fleas. They will jump towards the light, become mired in the high viscosity of the soapy liquid and be trapped for easy disposal in the morning.

6. Do this for about 3 or 4 nights in a row and you will see many, many fleas in the water become none after only a few days.
7. If that still doesn't kill them all, you can use a cheap flea fogger. Make sure that they are IGR compliant (Insect Growth Regulator) as this ensures that the flea eggs do not mature into fully grown fleas.
